PUBLISHED BY THE STUDENTS
OF
ACADEMY HIGH SCHOOL
ERIE, PENNSYLVANIA

We appreciate

. . . . the interest shown and accommodating work done by—

Mr. Ralph Weber of the National Service Engraving Company who so excellently interpreted the editor's ideas.

Mr. Paul Miller of the McCarty Printing Company who co-operated heartily with the staff in carrying out the arrangement of the book.

Mr. Frank Schauble who rendered indispensable aid to the staff in the arranging of groups for pictures.

Miss Mildred Epp, Miss Gloria Stein, and Miss Norma Brinkley who assisted in the composition.

Miss Marjorie Greenwald, typist, who gave unselfishly of her time and energy in preparing the manuscript.

to
Miss Gertrude Gaggin

who this year closed a long association with Academy. By her wise counsel, warm sympathy, and unremitting labors in the classroom, she endeared herself to her associates and her students, and won for herself a deep and lasting gratitude.

IN PRESENTING THE 1939 ACADEME . . . . Idyls of Academy

. . . . has been chosen as our theme. We have endeavored to reflect the spirit of Academy and to portray, through the media of pictures and the written word, its contributions to its students. We have resolved not only to fulfill the need of a 1939 yearbook but also to consider its compilation and undergraduate as well as a Senior project.

It has been our desire to make this book your book and to present the material in as novel a way as time, opulence, and ingenuity would permit. To accomplish this we have employed continuity of theme, new layouts, and pertinent headings to maintain interest.

"Education is the apprenticeship of life."

Academy is striving to prepare each student adequately to become a desirable member of society by educating him not only intellectually, but physically and socially as well. Because the attitudes and ideals which become a part of a student's character during his high school career are retained throughout his life, the administrators and teachers of Academy are attempting to impress upon him the importance of such qualities as leadership, character, service, good health, cooperation, and tolerance; to impart to him a definite appreciation of culture and a desire for self-expression that will enable him to live a life in complete unison with his fellow-men. We all agree that this purpose has been most adequately fulfilled; that Academy, whose memories we will cherish forever, embodies the ideals of an institution ready to answer the stern challenge of an ever-changing world.

The Academe Staff,
Academy High School,
Erie, Pennsylvania.

When I first heard the theme of the Academe I was puzzled. Knowing that it is a student publication I was fearful that the theme was, The Idles of Academy. Then it struck me that you were honoring your teachers so I decided it was, The Idols of Academy. Soon, however, the correct idea came as I realized that it was really, The Idyls of Academy.

And what better theme? In technical sense an idyl is merely a picture or an event. But the word has acquired a connotation of pleasantness or significance or both. It is fitting, then, that the Academe should be, The Idyls of Academy. For ours are pleasant days—days filled with significance. Your record of them set down in the Academe will increase our pleasure in them and enhance their significance.

Sincerely,

C. W. McNARY

You as students of Academy are familiar with the words:

"Training lives in truth and duty Honor, trust, and loyalty."

You have sung these words dozens of times, perhaps not realizing that Academy cannot train you in these qualities, but can only offer you the opportunity to train yourselves.

How far you succeed in this self-training is the measure of your success after school days are over.

SUSAN A. TANNER

To the Seniors

"I wish you much happiness in the morn of life and in the bright afternoon but above all a clear sky where the sun goes down."

Faculty

Friendliness is perhaps the outstanding characteristic of both the administration and faculty. It is this particular quality that makes them so well liked in classes and out, so welcome at social affairs, so vitally concerned for our future welfare and ever willing to lend their guidance in our extra-curricular activities.

While some of the members of the teaching staff are new, all have caught the spirit of Academy. Through their assistance by personal contacts or teaching, the administration and faculty stand first, then, among the contributions of Academy to its students.

O F STUDIES

Of Studies

“Every day that we spend without learning is a day lost.”

The majority of us do not realize the value of our free education until the later years of senior high school: then we begin to see the changes that have occurred in ourselves, our outlook on life, and our entire general bearing.

Through such subjects as the sciences, higher mathematics, and social studies, we have learned, unconsciously perhaps, to develop the mind. Geography, economics, and history teach us the greatest of all discoveries: how to live and be happy in the best possible way. Home economics and the industrial arts are offered by the school to balance our curriculum and to develop and train our creative interests. English, foreign languages, and the fine arts help us to build a radiant personality, to open the way of self-expression, and to know the satisfaction of living an abundant life.

We have received beneficial counsel in choosing subjects to be included in our preparation for life after graduation—whether it be college, industry, or business, and while broadening the scope of our academic knowledge, we as students learn to accept culture and become desirable members of society.

Because the outlook on life of the student in school will be the outlook of the adult in a large community, all scholastic activities are planned with an eye to the needs and welfare of the individual and of society. Of our educational process, which recognizes and cherishes the individual who is not coerced and distorted, we can assert without reservation that our school is training its members to accept fully the socialization so necessary to our modern civilization.

Thread Chips

A skilled machinist is not made in a day, for his proficiency comes only after much practice at his trade. With this thought in mind, Academy established a machine shop in September, 1938. This was done in order to facilitate the training of boys who feel that they are mechanically inclined and who wish to get a foundation in the machinist trade. The shop also serves as a sign post on the path to a vocation in so far as it shows a boy whether or not he is fitted to handle machinery efficiently.

Activities

“Important as it is to organize and direct the industry of the world, it is more important to organize and direct the leisure of the world.”

Man, in all the various stages of his development, finds himself possessed of a desire for self-expression in one of its many forms. In a school of rapidly developing young students, some outlet, some safety-valve must be found for this expanding Ego. It may lie buried in Music, in Literature, in Drama, or it may lie in Electricity, Radio, anything—whatever the method of release, it must be found.

Thus the extra-curricular activities have become a fundamental and necessary part of Academy life, for in them only certain of us have been able to crystallize a half-suspected latent ability, to realize a slumbering ambition, or to pamper a groping creative urge. The nucleus of many an impromptu orchestra comes from the Academy musical clubs; many a capable executive profits by the experience gained on the Academy publications. Those who serve here, on committees covering every phase of our social life, are acquiring that indefinable asset of ready ease for which we are all striving.

There are many such organizations in Academy, diversified, scattered, yet each a unified group with definite ideals, which have in a short time become an indispensable part of our education.

We, the Students, Speak

In the spring of '37, Academy mounted its first stepping stone toward student participation in school management through its organization of the Student Senate. The students of this group lend their assistance to the administration in carrying out the work of the school by coping with fundamental problems that arise, and so become better leaders for the America of tomorrow.

Youthful Diplomats

Among the clubs at Academy, one of the oldest and most worthwhile is the International Club, whose membership consists of those students who excel in the study of history. This organization was formed to stimulate the students' interest in present-day happenings, both at home and abroad. The club has done much to make the students of Academy international-minded.

In Any Language

In order to promote a broader understanding of different peoples through a study of their language and customs, the Cosmopolitan Club was formed. Any student who has had a year of any foreign language is eligible for membership. Successively, the different groups, composed of the Latin, French, and German students, present a program dealing with the race whose language they have studied. The Cosmopolitan Club has contributed greatly to the intellectual and cultural development of its members.

Ready for Service

The Hi-Y with its purpose to create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character, has done much to bring the problems facing modern youth to the attention of the young men of Academy. This is effected by having local men speak to the Hi-Y members on civic problems. In addition to this program of civic education, faculty adviser, Mr. Leamy, in cooperation with Ted Epply and Max Darone of the Y. M. C. A., arranges scavenger hunts, out-door retreats at the Y Camp, joint meetings with the other Hi-Y clubs of the city, dances, and parties, to give the boys social as well as educational programs.

Earnest in Purpose

The members of the Girl Reserves have learned to meet life's challenge courageously, by developing a healthy body, an alert mind, and a willingness to serve their country, their community, and their school. At graduation a character cup is presented to the girl whose life has most successfully fulfilled the Girl Reserve oath.

Admit, Please!

The Library is vitally essential to the welfare of a modern high school. At Academy, the Library is open at all times to the student body, for research, study, and leisure reading.

The quiet efficiency which makes it possible for such large numbers of students to make use of the Library is maintained by the efforts of the Library Staff. This group, composed of reliable, resourceful, patient students, has made the Library at Academy noteworthy for its service and cooperation.

The Voice of Academy

The ambition of every Academy student who is interested in newspaper work is to become a member of the Star Staff. To attain this enviable position a student must have a high standing in English, and he must pass a competitive examination. Only the best equipped students are selected and these fortunate few gain invaluable experience from their many and diversified assignments.

Watch the Birdie!

All students who are interested in photography and the art of taking pictures may find their associates in the Camera Club. No scholastic attainment is required for membership in this organization. Camera Club members specialize in the taking and the developing of original pictures. It is through their efforts that school contests and exhibitions, for the purpose of furthering individual knowledge of photography, have been sponsored.

Check Mates

The inauguration of the new club program somewhat retarded the advancement of the chess club for the many new students who were inducted into the club had to be instructed in the elementary principles of the ancient game. The school club is affiliated with the Erie Chess Club and it is the desire of the members to become proficient enough, some day, to join the Erie Club. Several Academy players have already been admitted to that organization.

Noblesse Oblige

Since its institution two years ago, the Academy chapter of the National Honor Society has been the hope and inspiration of every worthy student. In order to become a member, a candidate must be recommended by his teachers on a basis of excellence in four qualities: Scholarship, Leadership, Character, and Service.

Although this organization has existed at Academy for a short time only, it has done much toward the development of the ideal high school student.

Collegiate

One of the most perplexing problems facing the modern high school girl who wishes to further her education is the choice of a college. The College Club offers to the girls of Academy a chance to meet with representatives of various colleges to discuss such questions as the entrance requirements, courses offered, expenses, and social life at different schools. For the members who are unable to attend college for financial reasons, the College Club maintains a scholarship fund which has proved an invaluable aid to many of the girls.

We Serve

The purpose of the Junior Red Cross is to help others. As the Red Cross serves in time of catastrophe, we, the junior members, serve in our humble way.

The Gray Ladies' Auxiliary visits a local hospital to entertain the children with scrapbooks. Troubles are soon forgotten in the land of stories and games. The many books transcribed by the Braille group have given enjoyable hours to the blind. Through the cooperation of Mr. Whiteman's woodwork department and Miss Schaper's sewing classes our Council, consisting of the officers of each high school organization, sends toys and sunsuits to the Louisville Preventorium.

Every year a delegate is sent to the National Red Cross Conference. New ideas are brought back to inspire enthusiastic members to fulfill their motto, "We Serve."

Behind the Scenes

Of course you remember the stairway used in the February Senior Class Play—the elaborate garden steps and the striking backdrop depicting the rockbound sea-coast in “Twelfth Night,” and the pink elephants in the Junbo Night auditorium show. All these and many other interesting pieces of scenery, stage settings, lighting effects, and a well-kept stage are made possible through the untiring efforts of the stage crew who work quietly yet industriously to be of service to all who may call upon them. A salute to the stage crew whose efforts are so often overlooked.

Annalists

Securing accurate information, obtaining interviews, and writing interesting, original compositions are only a few of the seemingly insurmountable difficulties that face the Editorial Staff. The editors must combine the write-ups, pictures, and other material so that the yearbook will be attractive and informal, as well as representative of all phases of student activity. By selecting a definite theme and centering all our ideas around it, we have attempted to present the "Idyls of Academy"—small pictures of the complex life in school.

Technicians

While the actual writing of the Academe is assigned to the Editorial Staff, and the sales and finances are handled by the Financial Staff, the duties of the Technical Staff are diversified. Designing division pages, and a cover, sorting, cutting, and pasting Senior pictures in a "dummy" Academe, taking informal snapshots, and supervising the general lay-out of the yearbook are some of the tasks confronting this group.

The Staff this year is one of the largest and most competent ever assembled. Each member has contributed his talents and his time toward making the 1939 Academe one of the best of Academy's yearbooks.

Masters of the Mint

One can peruse the Academe from cover to cover and see no apparent evidence of the work of the Financial Staff, but every page in the yearbook is a serious matter of dollars and cents to the staff members; they must plan and direct the sales campaign, adjust Academe finances, and finally distribute the finished product.

The Jingle Bell dance and several Jumbo Night concessions were only a part of their efforts to furnish the principal with which to meet the publication bills. This year the sales campaign was so successful an enterprise that the number of Academes purchased has exceeded that of any previous year.

New Clubs

Because the new clubs at Academy are so varied and so numerous, space does not permit our naming and discussing all of them. Those indicated above are representative of the organizations whose membership is open to Academy students. The activities program so recently inaugurated at Academy encourages each member of the student body to meet with his classmates in a spirit of play and recreation, thus establishing social contacts among the students and developing in them the social finesse which will enable them to live more gracefully among their fellowmen.

Of Music

"Music is a discipline and a mistress of order and good manners."

Few of us, upon entering high-school, can know or even appreciate fully the satisfying beauty of good music. A small percentage of one's associates may have had private instruction, but the greater majority of boys and girls obtain their first musical training in our public schools.

Academy is an open door to all pupils interested in music. We shall endeavor to present to you a brief glimpse of the student's progress in music here. Upon entering, the student has at hand the best music course under the most competent instructors that a school can offer. His training begins in the seventh grade with sight reading, elementary harmony, and other necessary rudiments of music. As this training continues, the pupil advances rapidly. He is taught simple versions of our best-loved songs; he learns to recognize, upon hearing them, the world's greatest musical masterpieces, and in due time, his course includes a brief study of renowned composers. Then, if he desires, he may broaden the scope of his general knowledge by becoming a member of any of Academy's creditable musical organizations, both instrumental and vocal.

Good music is one of Academy's famed traditions. Any industrious student is able to derive great benefit in the form of thorough knowledge and appreciation of music, if he will but take advantage of the excellent opportunities afforded him in our complete contrapuntal system.

We Offer Song

The personnel of the Academy Singers never exceeds sixty-five voices. Marks are carefully censored, and because high scholarship as well as musical adaptability is stressed so strongly, the student morale is easily recognized as the best in the school.

Each year the Choir makes a long concert tour and several short trips to points in the vicinity of Erie. Rehearsal for programs presented on trips and in regular concerts constitutes the Singers' routine. This year the Choir has directed all its efforts in preparation for the journey to the New York World's Fair.

Happily We Sing

As a companion organization to the Girls' Chorus, there is the Boys' Glee Club, consisting of boys from all grades where training is similar to that of the Chorus; they rehearse daily for concerts presented in school assemblies, and offer various other programs throughout the year. At the end of each term, the boys try out for membership in the Choir. Those boys who have proved their ability and their willingness for hard work, are rewarded by being chosen as members of the Academy Singers. Formerly, the Glee Club was regarded as merely a stepping-stone to a higher goal, but this year it has won a name for itself greater than that of any of its predecessors.

A Sweet Refrain

The first of the vocal organizations that the student may join is the Girls' Chorus, composed of girls chosen from the entire student body who are striving constantly to improve their own vocal technique—to learn how to appreciate and select wisely good choral music. It is here, too, that the girls are given intensive sight-reading exercises and ear training, so that they will be eligible to pass the rigid tests for membership in the Academy Singers to further their choral study.

Young Musicians

In the Junior orchestra which is composed of seventh and eighth grade students, one continues his study of composers, including contemporary writers, and is able to put to practical use the knowledge that he has assimilated through his class work, in the preparation of concerts, that are presented throughout the year. This is perhaps the first intensive study that is presented to the students; it serves to relive both the routine of academic subjects and to foster a living, growing appreciation of music and the allied arts.

Music, Maestro, Please

As the student passes from Junior to Senior High School, he may become a member of the Senior Orchestra which is composed of wood-wind, string, and brass instruments. This is a classical orchestra which presents concerts in school assemblies, both at Academy and neighboring schools. The repertoire of the group includes representative selections from familiar operas and symphonies, as well as light concert music.

Here Comes the Band!

The Band has proved the inspiration of many fine musicians who are now professional performers. Because of the many different types of music studied, programs are numerous and varied, consisting of marches, overtures, operatic selections, and modern compositions.

Each year several concerts are given at Academy and at other schools in Erie and vicinity. Trips enjoyed by the Band are financed by the energetic efforts of its members through concerts, dances, and other entertainment.

We Love a Parade

Every student has thrilled to the sight of the Drum and Bugle Corps marching across the gridiron. We are proud of their trim appearance, quick precision, and excellent drill tactics.

This year the group accompanied the football team to Louisville. Although our team bowed in defeat, everyone forgot this disappointment at the dance sponsored by Dupont Manual High School and the trip was voted a success.

OF SPORTS

Athletics

*When the shore is won at last
Who will count the billows past—*

So, in our idyls of sports, we look not back to the "billows past", to the number of games won or lost, but rather to what athletics has done for Academy in the past year.

The outstanding feature of a program of athletics, second to none, was the efforts made to develop the junior varsity sports. Training a boy at an early age leads not only to his advancement athletically, but also to the building of a firm foundation upon which the structure of his character may be erected.

The appointing of a separate mentor for each sport enlarged the staff, and gave each coach an opportunity to develop his charges to a better degree than if his attention were divided among several sports. We are now represented by one of the best coaching staffs in the district.

Academy school spirit, which formerly had been spoken of as only a ghost, finally came to life and burst forth in a magnificent crescendo of cheers. In no other time, did our sport program receive such support as in the current year.

The idyls of sports are in themselves no different from those of the school itself. They embody every principle of good character that any course can offer and, in addition, provide a testing ground for the application of these principles, namely, the field of athletic competition.

The Guiding Lights

Behind the brawn there must be brain. We have been bountifully blessed by Dame Fortune in that our coaching staff is well stocked in both brain and brawn. Their ability to mix with the students, to joke, to criticize, and to inspire, makes the sports program a very inviting extra-curricular activity to all those who are athletically inclined.

City Champions four years in a row! Twice held alone and twice shared—that's the record of Coach Drake's gridders. Over a path strewn with triumph, defeat, keen competition, and good sportsmanship, the Academy Lions have come, meeting defeat at the hands of a city school only once in the last four years.

Cagey Lions

For the first time in a decade, the coveted crown of the city basketball championship has come to rest at the hill-top school. Coach Thomas acquitted himself well in his first year as head basketball coach by leading his boys to victory. True, there were defeats, but each inspired the team to greater heights until the crown was won.

The cradle of future great basketeers! Thus is Junior High basketball described for it is here that a boy begins his hardwood career. By schooling the boys in the fundamentals of the game, particularly ball-handling and shooting, Coach Hale develops his charges into future varsity material to carry on Academy's traditions.

To Blush Unseen

The program of varsity competition cannot accommodate all who wish to participate in school athletics. Realizing the need for physical development of these students, the coaching staff inaugurated the intramural sports program in which all students may participate. Thus, the intramural program gives the boy organized league competition which he would otherwise have to find outside the school.

INTERLUDES

Social Interludes

*"A little nonsense now and then
Is relished by the wisest men."*

"All work and no play" never holds true at Academy where a varied program of social activities offers a pleasant respite from the more serious task of diligent learning, and where life is genial and interesting.

Meeting one's friends and associates in a healthful atmosphere to play and to be entertained is at once necessary and vital to maintain harmony and order in any community. Realizing this, the administrators and faculty alike are constantly endeavoring to promote a program that will not only fascinate the adolescent mind, but will present successfully the valuable side of social activities so that each student may become an essential part of the social life as well as the daily system of regular curricular activities.

Numerous assemblies which are planned and selected to entertain, inform, and instruct the student body; the class plays and group parties; Student Senate and class elections; the mirth and revelry of Jumbo Night; and last, but not least, the gaiety and colorful festivity of the Proms—all contribute to the general atmosphere of recreation and diversion that makes for a well-balanced student life.

St. Mary's Auditorium

The finest event of the mid-year social program was the prom. Credit for its success must be given to this committee whose every effort was directed toward making the farewell to the departing January Seniors an event long to be remembered.

A Last Word

"There is a history in all men's lives."

Once upon a time, we, the members of the Senior class of '39 took our first step down the long vista of learning. With our young friends and playmates, we may have begun our first day of school hesitantly, eagerly, or perhaps only after pressing persuasion on the part of our parents. But the toys, stories, and songs that comprised kindergarten appealed to us and our little friends, and helped us in our association with others so that we were prepared for the tablets and primers of the first grade—the initial step in our regular school life.

School to us, as beginners, meant any number of fascinating things—Halloween parties, ice-cream Santa Clauses, Valentine boxes, May Days, paper Easter baskets, and fruit showers, besides the exciting process of learning to read and write. But, in the later years of grade school, we tired of the routine of marching to classes, silence in the halls, daily recesses, and infrequent assemblies, and began to look forward eagerly to the red-letter day when we would enter Junior High School.

The greatest delights of Junior High School life were buying our own lunches in the cafeteria, and using a comfortable and quiet library to improve our study habits as well as to gratify personal enjoyment. Every class and organization in the school gave a skating party at one time or another, and everybody went—skating parties were quite the thing, and a huge success. But the crowning event of those three years was the Prom! A first formal—a new suit, and a date, too! We surely must be growing up!—at least we thought so until we entered Academy.

A Last Word

We were at first amazed by the immense building, and the teeming numbers of students and the mad rush in the halls when the bell rang. But we were soon able to find our way around the school, and then life in this wonderful place became extremely interesting. Arranging our own schedules was baffling at first but it gave us a grand feeling of importance. The great variety of subjects offered and the new unit system of teaching made study more interesting. And at last! we had been given the privilege of attending and taking part in interesting assemblies and spirited rallies. We were thrilled at seeing our own classmates and friends play in city series athletic games. As students in Senior High School, we were urged to participate in class and club activities.

During our senior year, our class was organized, and due to the whole-hearted cooperation of its members, the success of all our activities was assured—skating parties, get-acquainted parties, banquet dances, and proms—all marked the end of a valuable and enjoyable career.

But for most of us, it wasn't until our Graduation exercises that we realized the significance of those twelve years. To the last strains of "The Blue and Gold," we regretfully made our farewell to all that had filled the best years of our lives.

With the hope of keeping always, graven here in these pages, the Academy which the class of 1939 has known, let us never cease to remember the glorious heritage of the past, yet return ever gladly to the scenes of our high school years for memories we cherish which can never, never change.

“Ledger 45, Folio 137”

NOT more than half a dozen words are needed for the modern accountant to locate the state of any account on his books. But imagine what the Cashier of the Bank of England had to wrestle with when George Washington was still a British subject. Notched twigs recorded thousands of important financial transactions. A needle in a hay-stack was little harder to locate than any particular twig in the vaults of the Bank of England.

Finally, these twigs became such a nuisance that they were ordered burned, and the resultant blaze burned down the Parliament buildings. Yet even that calamity was repaid with a system of records among the most thorough in the world. When the “Old Lady of Threadneedle Street” was able to replace sticks of wood with ledger paper, a new era of book-keeping began.

An Open Letter---

To the 1939 Graduates
of Erie High Schools

Hello Seniors!

You've heard tell that a journey of a thousand miles begins with one step -- your graduation from High School is that first long stride toward where you're going.

As one of the younger industries in Erie we have grown up almost to the day with you. We started business in Erie just about the time you started to school. So, in your lifetime and our's, we have a lot in common.

We hope you agree with us in thinking that Erie is a grand place in which to go to school, to live, and to work. And as you grow to become the men and women who represent Erie Citizenship, we hope we will grow with you to take our place in Erie's industrial background, and to make you even more proud of your home town.

You will find that your future in many ways will depend upon industry --- Industry depends upon Youth. Erie needs Industry.

We wish you well in whatever you undertake.

Sincerely,

L. O. Carlson
President

J. H. Carlson
Vice President

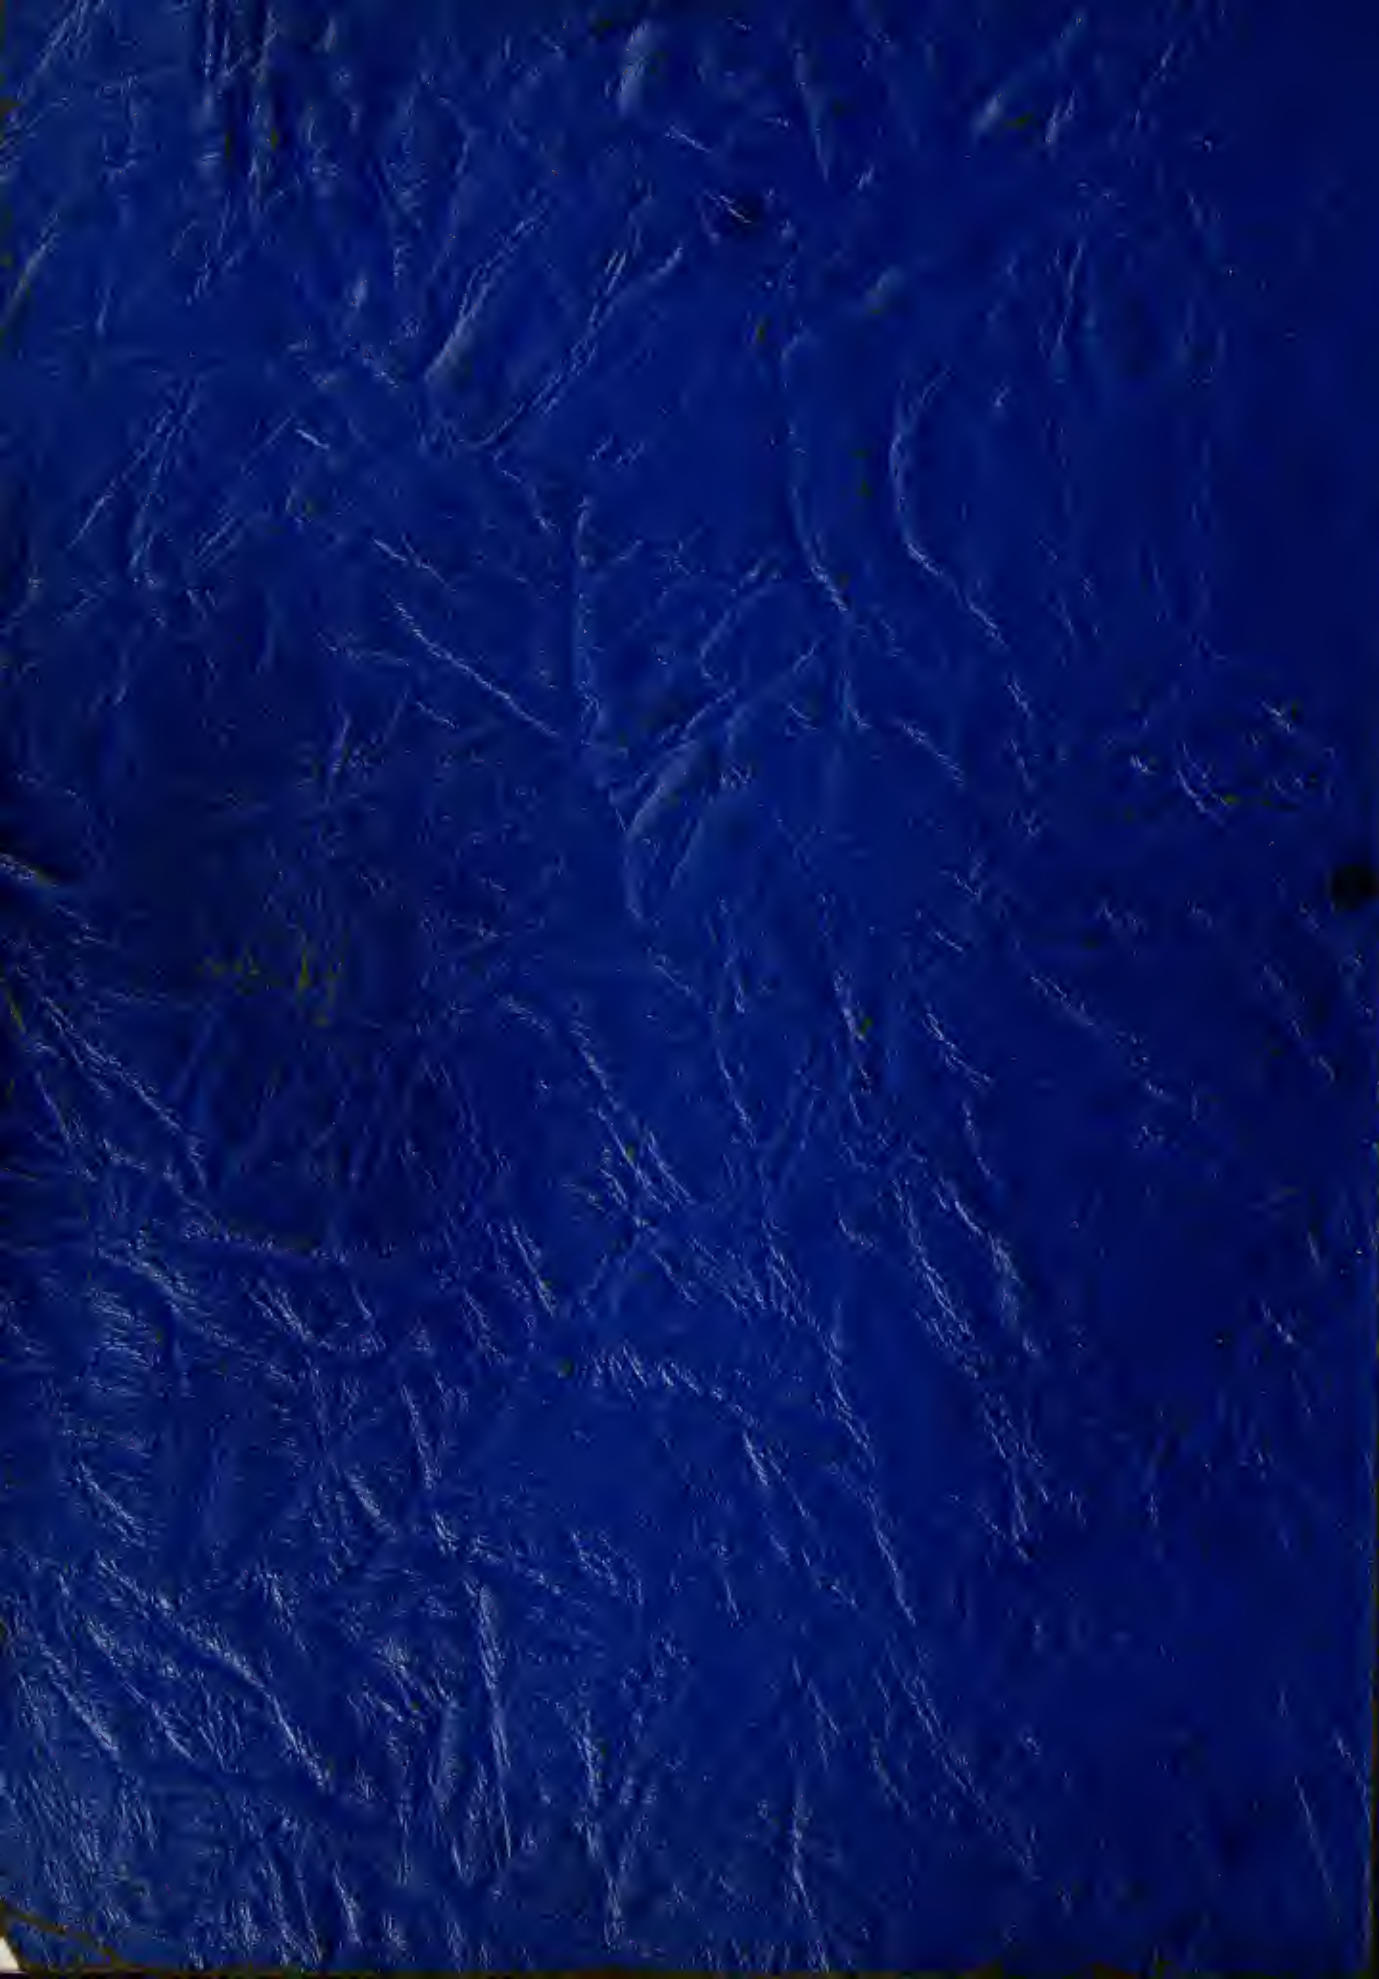

ERIE METER SYSTEMS, INC.
